

Stuart Kahl

Stuart Kahl co-founded Measured Progress as Advanced Systems in Measurement and Evaluation, Inc. in 1983, serving as vice president during the company's first fourteen years and as president and chief executive officer since 1997.

A former elementary and secondary teacher, Dr. Kahl earned degrees from Johns Hopkins University and from University of Colorado. He worked for the Education Commission of the States, the University of Colorado, Clark University, and RMC Research Corporation, where he helped generate statewide assessment business and directed several state contracts.

A frequent speaker at meetings of state and national professional groups, Dr. Kahl also provides technical consultation to various education agencies. He has been recognized for his work in the areas of standard setting for non-multiple-choice instruments and the alignment of curriculum and assessment. His most recent interests include formative assessment and the assessment of 21st century skills. Dr. Kahl regularly publishes research papers and commentaries introducing and analyzing current issues and trends in education.