00:23:45 Leslie Villegas: Leslie Villegas, New America English Learner Policy
00:24:12 Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): @Susan, yeah, yeah:-). Stay tuned, Ye is presenting tomorrow!!!
00:27:46 Kristen Huff: Did that definition change w/ re-auth?
00:28:19 Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): The slides for this session are posted on this page in agenda for session 1: https://www.nciea.org/events/claims-and-evidence-through-year-assessments-what-we-know-and-what-we-need-know
Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): @Kristen, the interim flex is what you're thinking about with the ESSA reauthorization, which is different than RTTT.

Kristen Huff: @SM - right. Thanks.

Chris Domaleski: @Kristen, here's the language from ESSA regarding State discretion to measure performance on academic standards: "through multiple statewide interim assessments during the course of the academic year that result in a single summative score that provides valid, reliable, and transparent information on student achievement or growth." So, similar but not matching language to RttT.

Kristen Huff: @CD - thanks for the detail!

Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): @Randy Bennett, thanks for your leadership in this area!

Brenda Dixon: Will we have access to the slide deck? this is powerful information!

Brenda Dixon: Thanks!

Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): @Brenda, scroll down on that page to the agenda and when you expand Session 1, you'll see these slides.

Brenda Dixon: Thanks Scott!

Susan Lyons: Have you seen a good example of a well-articulated theory of action for through-year assessment that could be shared?

Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): Susan, that's why we're here:-), but we have great panelists to help us with that!

Brenda Dixon: Great question Susan! If the answer is yes i would like a copy.

Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): Theories of action have to be contextualized for each case, but we are laying out general frameworks for doing that.

Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): Don't hesitate to ask questions of Brian and/or Nathan in the chat or in the Q & A and you can save some of the hard question for Laine!

James Pellegrino: the classic work of Jim Voss from LRDC!! High and low baseball knowledge.

Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): Yes, great work from LRDC! @Leslie Keng would excel on the high baseball knowledge!

Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): The first state approved!

Leslie Villegas: What kind of accommodations are provided for English learners?

Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): Leslie, we'll bring up your question to Chanda in the Q & A, but Nathan might be able to answer now.

Leslie Villegas: Great, thank you!

Brenda Dixon: Does Louisiana Education Agency defint all units of instruction for the entire state?

Kristen Maxey-Moore: What supports do you have in place for students that enroll later in the year and aren't exposed to a unit or two?

Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): @Brenda, LA DOE does NOT mandate curriculum, but they put out a model curriculum that a vast majority of districts use and now, as Chanda just said, they are expanding to the other most common curriculum.

Jim Gullen: @Brenda, I believe she said about 75% of the schools use the model curriculum.

Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): @Leslie, the accommodations mirror the state test. However, there is no alternate language at this time, which means that students have to take the statewide assessment.
01:14:47 Anne Wallace: I need to go to another meeting, but thank you --very interesting.
Looking forward to the other presentations in the series
01:14:51 Jim Gullen: Is it the case that the innovative assessment under development is only in ELA at this time and other content area assessments are more "traditional"?
01:20:10 Chanda Johnson (Louisiana): Currently Louisiana is focusing on ELA, but we are excited about a potential opportunity to start exploring math.
01:20:21 Chanda Johnson (Louisiana): Currently, if students miss a window they complete our traditional summative assessment at the end of the year, but we are exploring an option that would allow students to complete another assessment that would not be tied to curriculum.
01:20:28 Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): And you can see Meagan present tomorrow afternoon!
01:21:46 Paul Zavitkovsky: Wondering if Jeremy could summarize what he sees as the KEY DIFFERENCES between NWEA's MAP Growth system and the new NSCAS system
01:22:16 Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): It worked:-)
01:22:59 Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): Thanks all for the great questions. We'll feed them to Jeremy as soon as he finishes talking
01:23:04 James Pellegrino: what’s the instructional validity argument and evidence for this?
01:29:25 Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): @Jim, we will be laying out some of the evidentiary requirements for instructional validity in session 2 and again in session 4.
01:31:16 Sally Shay: Could we get the panelists' slide decks also?
01:31:42 Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): @Sally, the slides are here: https://www.nciea.org/events/claims-and-evidence-through-year-assessments-what-we-know-and-what-we-need-know
01:31:50 Brenda Dixon: Sally they are posted here:
01:32:07 Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): Scroll down to the agenda to session 1
01:32:10 Jeremy Heneger, Nebraska Department of Education: @Darin It is my understanding the MAP Growth is grade agnostic. It does not require students to have items that are aligned to a specific grade level.
01:33:19 Paul Zavitkovsky: A common objection about reporting from MAP Growth's item bank is that it's heavy on discrete skills and light to non-existent on application and transfer. Given the priority Nebraska has placed on informing instruction, I'm wondering how Nebraska has been able to work with NWEA to address this problem in ways that more strongly support application, transfer and other forms of deeper learning for all students.
01:33:38 Brenda Dixon: Scott is there a link to download the Pellegrino document on instructional validity?
01:34:23 Mark Robeck: https://www.tandfonline.com/doi/full/10.1080/00461520.2016.1145550
01:34:38 Brenda Dixon: Thabnks Mark!
01:34:40 Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): Thanks @Marck
01:34:44 Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): Mark
Karen Barton: @Paul - One initial response and we welcome more dialogue: The NSCAS Growth model is not MAP Growth, and NE has an item bank of NE specific, non-MAP items. Plus the blueprints are specific to NE not MAP.

Jeremy Heneger, Nebraska Department of Education: @Paul Z NSCAS Growth combines the items banks of our summative assessment and MAP Growth. The assessment starts by checking in with the student with grade level content before being able to adapt outside of the grade level. The CAT then can dig into areas where a student was struggling.

Steve Ferrara: I think Brenda meant FREE download...

Karen Barton: We include MAP items for linking purposes.

Brenda Dixon: the link will only give it to me if I pay a $45 fee...but thanks anyway.

Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): @Jim will send it to you!

Brenda Dixon: LOL...yes ...free :-)

Brenda Dixon: Thanks Jadi! :-)

Scott Marion, NCIEA (he/him): @Laine is correct! As @Carla Evans can tell you, the IADA is a high bar!

Steve Ferrara: Don't mean to be provocative or annoying or anything negative like that, Laine... How soon will you and your district partners get to efficacy studies on the personalized feedback?

Carla Evans: @Laine--I'll be interested to hear in the future how your aggregation methods and evaluations map onto teacher judgments as we know not all standards are written at the same grain size. I wonder if you've considered weighting some standards more than others based on teacher input. In math, for example, procedural skill and fluency standards could be weighted less than application standards.

Pat Fitzsimmons: I like the focus on learning. Since all standards are not created equal, is it necessary to assess all standards or should some be prioritized?

Carla Evans: @Pat--clearly we were thinking the same thing:)

Chris Domaleski: Thank you presenters!

Jim Gullen: Thanks, presenters!

Amy Trauernicht: Thank you!

Laine Bradshaw, Navvy: We are also looking at aggregate result that weights standards differentially, based on importance or grain size.

Russell Keglovits: Thank you to the Center. This is hugely valuable!

Carla Evans: Excellent presentations!

Steve Ferrara: +1
